PRINCIPAL'S / SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT COUNCIL REPORT

Harbor View Elementary sails for excellence with high expectations in academics and citizenship. These expectations drive our learner-centered education. High expectations in academics are seen in our test scores, which are among the best in Charleston. High expectations in citizenship are seen in our low rate of discipline referrals combined with the high number of students who make the Citizenship Honor Roll each nine weeks. Our students are good citizens, as well as happy ones!

The year 2001 was the third implementation of the Palmetto Achievement Challenge Tests (PACT) in grades three, four, and five. We expect our students to continue to perform as well in 2001 as in previous years. In previous years over 90% of the students in these grades scored at or above the basic level in English/Language Arts and 86% scored at or above basic in Mathematics. These results are a good indication that our rigorous and challenging curriculum is paying off!

At Harbor View, we see ourselves as an extended family. Our family is not limited to faculty, students, and parents, but extends to our business partners and the community. Volunteers can be seen daily in our school either helping in classrooms or with special projects. Teaching children to help others is an important part of teaching them to be good citizens. Harbor View's food, toy, and SPCA drives are annual success stories. In our fifth year of participation in the St. Jude's Children's Hospital's "mathathon," our students raised over $5,000 to help other children. The student council's basket raffles raised money for Jenkins' Orphanage, the Leukemia Society, and Pet Helpers. Every year, our first graders' caroling and our coru performances delight the community. Harbor View is dedicated in its commitment to the community.

Our school goals have been written to carry us forward into the 21st Century. Our vision remains the same - to strive for excellence. Each year, we examine our strategies and aim higher. Each year, we are dedicated to educating every child. With all of us working together, Harbor View will always attain its goals.

Keith B. Mason, Principal
